THE WIDOWMAKER

More than 700,000 Americans die of heart disease each year. For many of them, death is the first symptom of the disease. A simple heart scan could save many of these lives, but The Widowmaker reveals that a hidden battle fought inside America's medical establishment has pitted prevention against intervention--keeping scans in the shadows while cardiac surgeries soar. Featuring cardiologists, heart attack survivors and lawmakers, The Widowmaker will change the way you think about heart disease--and it just might save your life.
